▪ STUDENT PORTFOLIO ▪

Since 2005, I've taught over twenty courses in advertising, graphic, and digital design at five different colleges in Chicago, IL. They include Columbia College Chicago, The International Academy of Design & Technology, Harrington College of Design, The College of DuPage, and Roosevelt University. The following pages contain examples of student work from projects created in those classes.

Advertising Design - Integrated Marketing Campaign

Students learn the rationale involved in blending a brand's identity with its current marketing objectives by creating integrated marketing campaigns. Below is an example for the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, IL. Two more appear on the following page.

Advertising Design - Print Campaigns

Creating an advertising campaign shows a true understanding of the brand. It is based on an overarching strategy, connected by look, feel, voice, tone, style, imagery, and tagline. Of course, each individual ad in the campaign should be able to stand on its own. I find creating campaigns to be the most challenging yet most rewarding to achieve. The assignment below was to advertise a favorite snack chip. Two more campaigns appear on the following page.

Computer Graphics II - Food Truck

My favorite assignment (and the students too) in Computer Graphics II is having the class create an integrated marketing approach for a Food Truck of their choice. Students create and design the following: name, logo, food menu, accessories, and of course all sides of the truck. Two more examples appear on the following page.

Truly one of its kind, this is a mobile sandwich shop inspired by the ingenuity and vision of scientist, lecturer, educator, and inventor, George Washington Carver. Specifically, G.W. Carver's showcases the multi-faceted peanut, which Mr. Carver famously discovered and invented hundreds of uses for. Among the peanut, G.W. Carver's pays homage to all the work and contributions he made to the farming and agriculture industry.

All produce and foodstuffs used at Carver's are distributed from reputable local farms during their prime growing seasons. We guarantee top quality greens, vegetables, fruits, meats, cheeses, even including grains, oats, and nuts that we use to bake our own signature sandwich breads at our homebase kitchen.

In fact, just about everything we serve is designed and built from scratch in our kitchen - from our signature burger patties, buns, dressings, mayonnaises, and sauces, down to our pickles, potato chips, signature nut butters and mixed nut butches.

Seasons change, and so do our offerings at Carver's. Items on the menu rotate throughout the seasons, but our signature burger, vegan burger, flop sac (vegetarian), and spicy Thai chicken salad are permanent staples on the menu.

Not only are the salads and sandwiches at Carver's unique, but the mobile truck stands out among the sea of 2007 Ford super duty vans. Built from a 1933 International Metro truck originally used for Carleton Milk Company, the entire exterior and interior have been modified, repainted and restored. In honor of Mr. Carver, we rebuilt and fabricated the engine to completely run on 100% peanut oil! The roof has been modified so that a sunroof can be open and closed for ventilation during cooking hours. The window counter tops mount from the interior during kitchen hours, and the menu signage is removable magnet paneling.

G.W. Carver's offers our house peanut, cashew, and almond butters we designed for our sandwiches and for sale, as well as our chef picked mixed nut blends and even our own G.W. Carver's kitchen aprons for your own test kitchen at home or on the back patio grill.

Welcome

Here at CARVER'S, we want to blow your tastebuds away, not confuse you. Please, do not hesitate if you have any questions about our sandwiches. However, being popular isn't easy, and keep in mind that there is a line of hungry people waiting behind you. Like a great design, all the elements make up it's beauty. We will not add or subtract any key ingredient in our inventive eats. We guarantee you that you will thoroughly enjoy our offerings. Thank you, tell all your friends and family, and please come back soon.

Graphic Design 4 - Logo Design

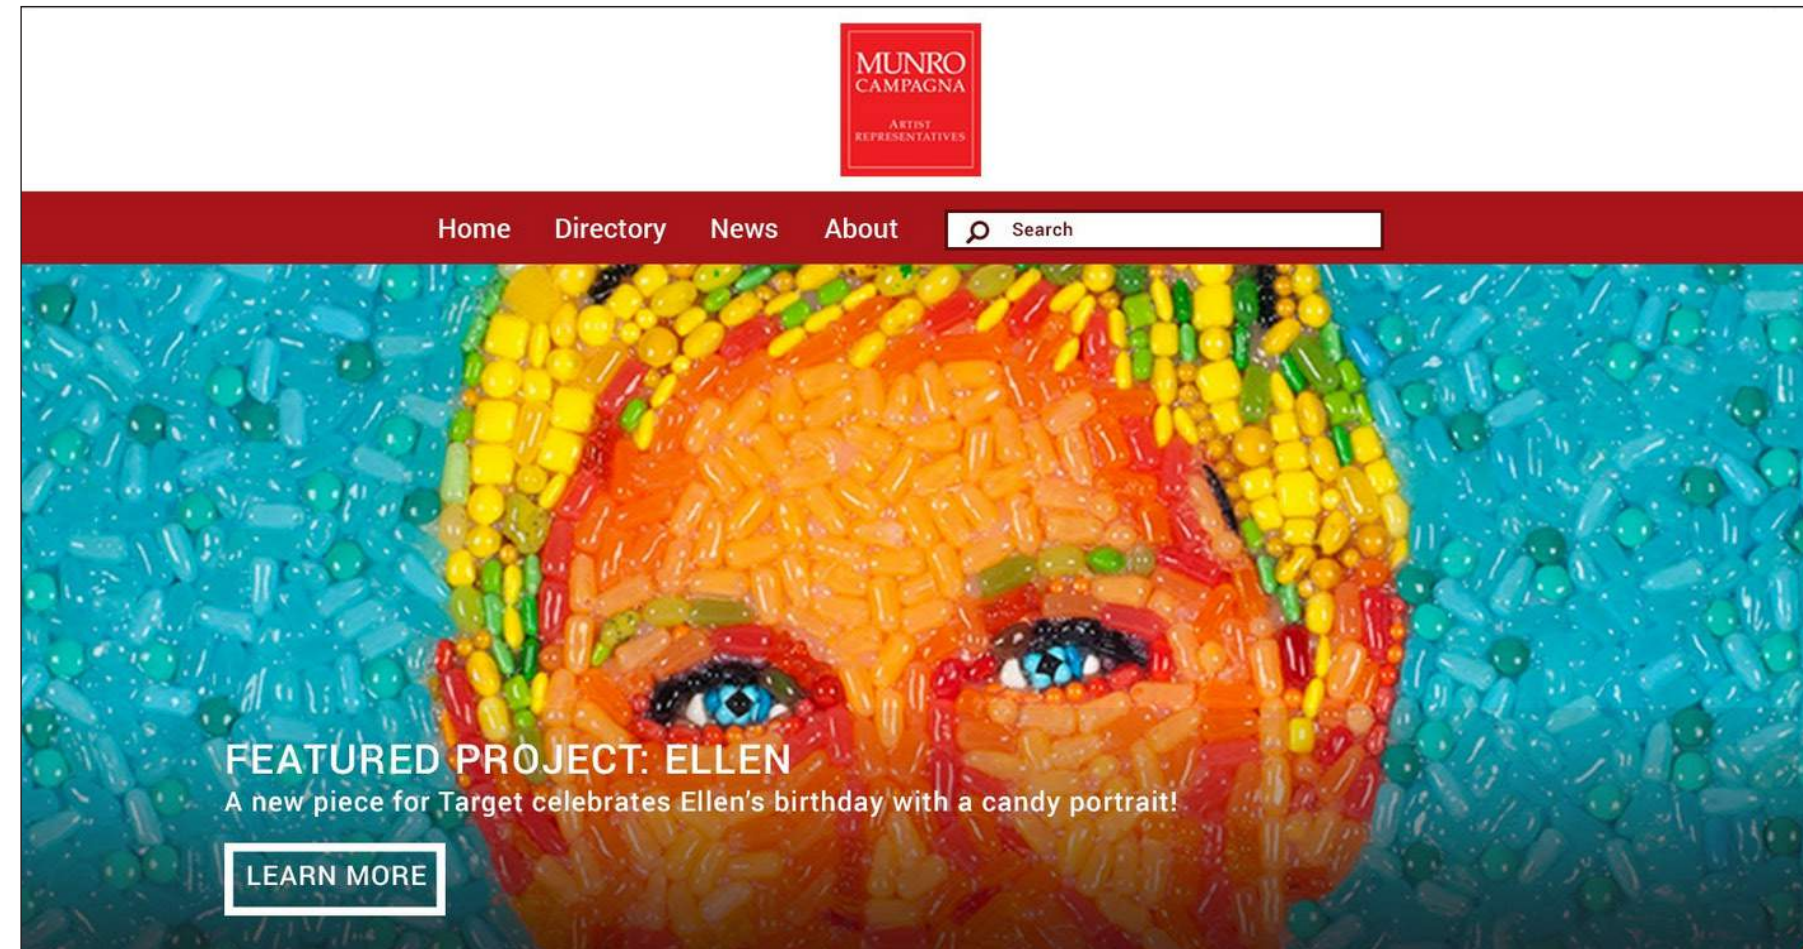

At the College of DuPage, Graphic Design 4 is an advanced course intended to simulate the working environment of a professional design office. All projects assigned in this class are actual projects with real clients that have real objectives and deadlines. This project was to design a logo (sponsored by ASICS) for the 2015 Windy City Junior National Volleyball Championship. Below is the winning logo. Three more appear on the following page.

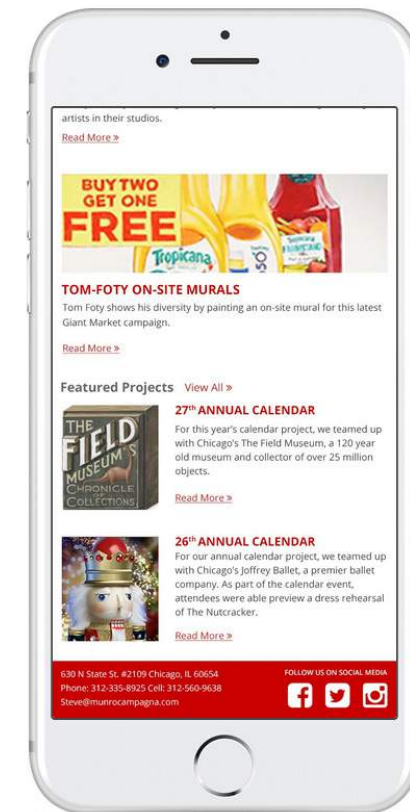

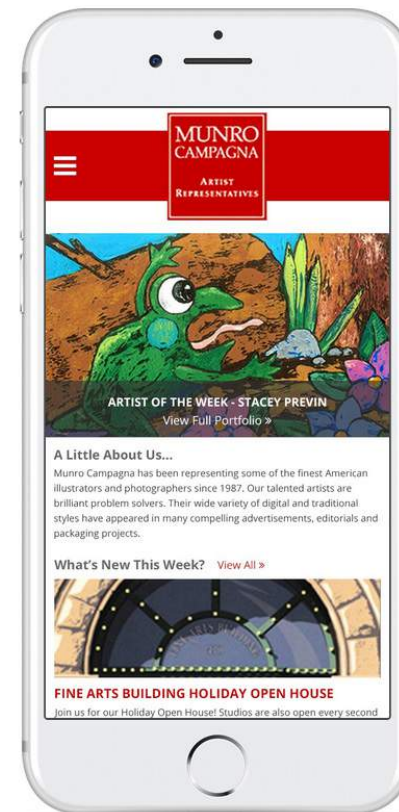

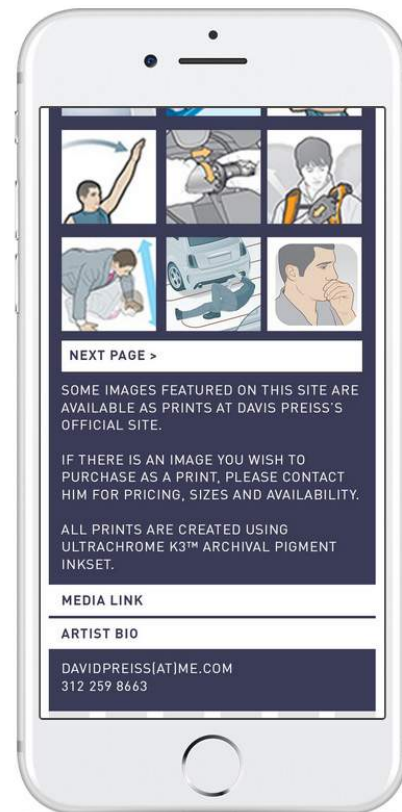

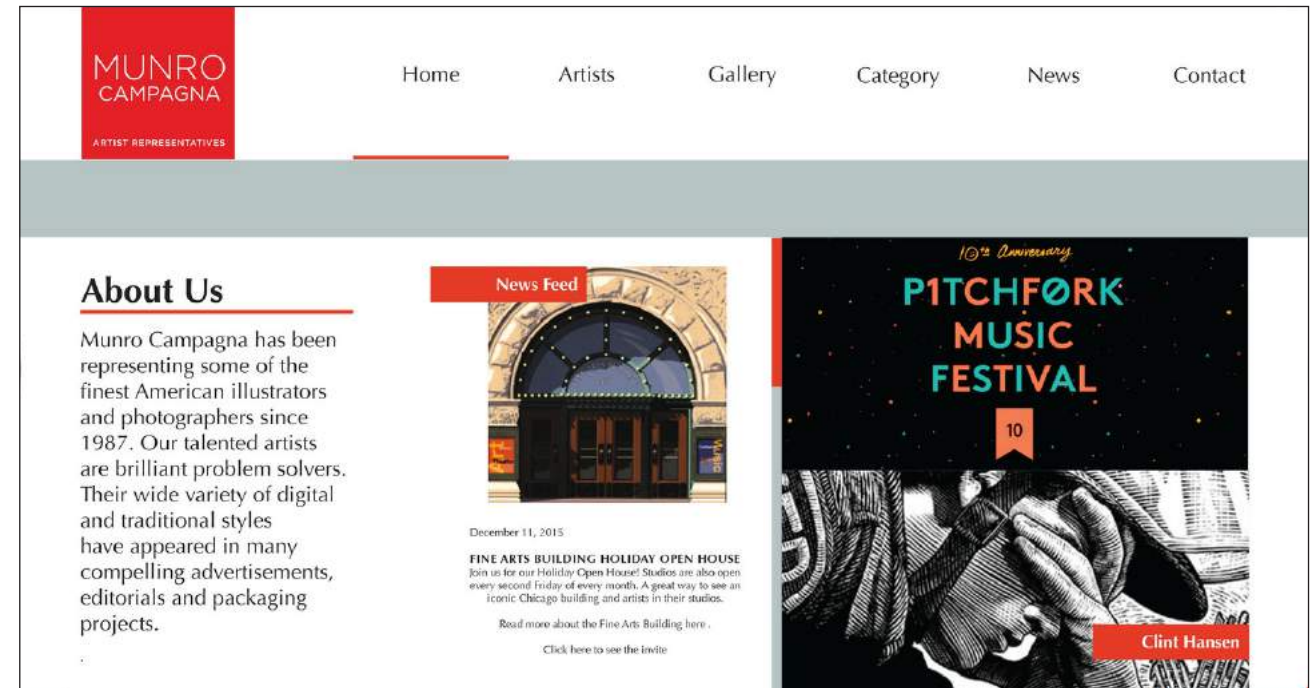

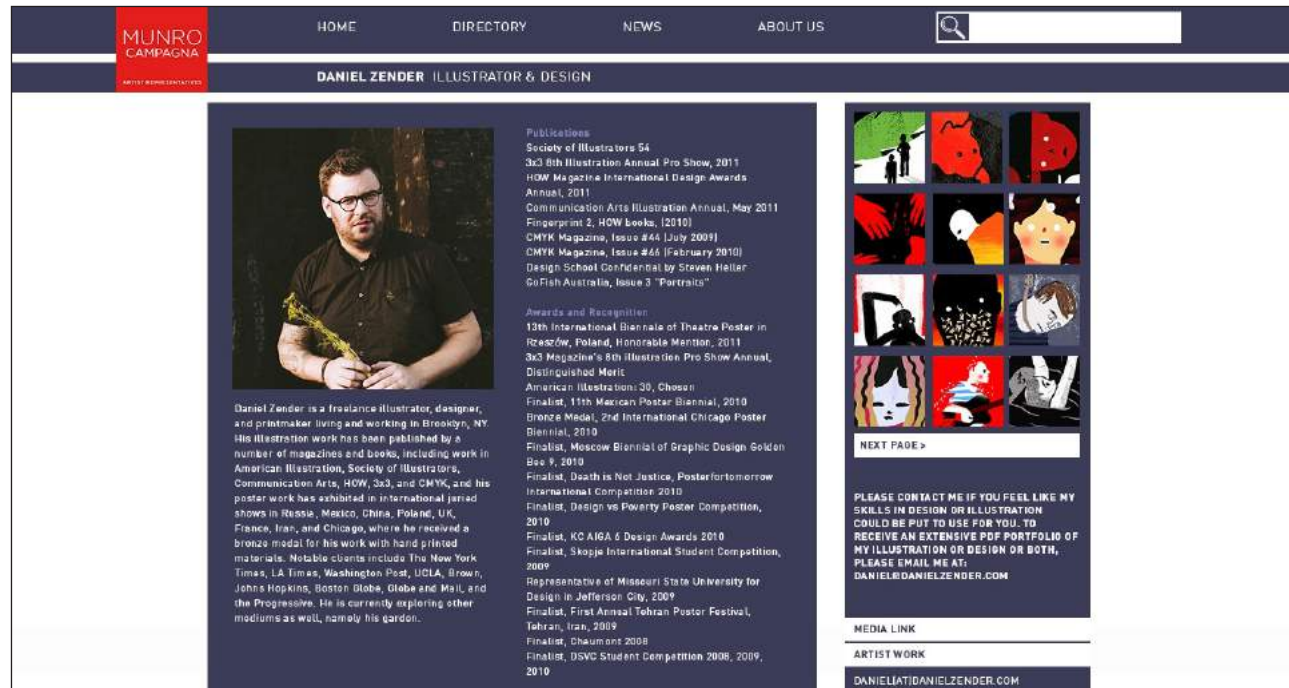

Graphic Design 4 - Website Design

Munro-Campagna is an art studio based in the Chicagoland area. Representing artists from around the world, it is important they have a well-functioning website that conveys their professional attitude. The goal was to create a website for the agency that allows for a smooth user experience and relays all of Munro's important information to the general public. The final result should be updated to reflect a modern attitude, while still keeping select original elements so that the brand is not lost. The assignment was to display the website and be responsive in an app. Two more examples appear on the following page.

Portfolio Development And Theater Department - Theater Posters

During the semester I would have my Portfolio Development students collaborate with the stage director students from the Theater Department to help create original posters for their upcoming plays. I also worked closely with the Program Directors beforehand in coordinating projects. All final show posters were always created 2' X 3'. Three more examples appear on the following page.

Portfolio Development

This capstone course is geared for Graphic Design, Advertising Art Direction, and Illustration majors. Students are assisted in their preparation to enter the job market. They assemble a professional portfolio, writing and designing a resume, cover letter, business cards and mastering interviewing techniques. Where to look for a job, salary ranges, and alternative means of employment are also discussed. Areas or gaps in the student's area of expertise are filled in with either new or existing projects. Three more appear on the following page.

Introduction To Advertising Art Direction

The course covers basic principles of advertising from conception through production. Students learn to develop and present their ideas through creative design and layout. Early on, students are taught the importance of branding, and the steps necessary to develop a creative brief. They're taught the different stages of layout design. They work traditionally by hand as well as with the computer. They learn to produce thumbnails, rough sketches, comps, plus final presentation of the idea as a selling message. Three more appear on the following page.

Storyboard Development

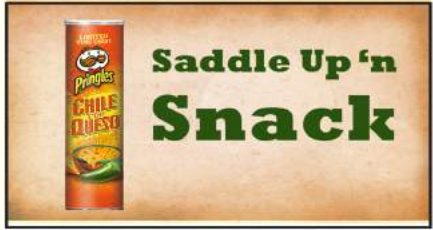

Students study the strategy used in developing an idea and design for television advertising. The goals for the class are: (1) To understand how a TV commercial is conceived, constructed and finally storyboarded. (2) Become comfortable with your drawing style and, through rendering single frames, convey your story about a product or service. (3) Tell a story from start to finish in a compelling and visually exciting manner. Final storyboards were usually created in 8 1/2" X 11" format, either horizontal or vertical. Three more appear on the following page.

Advanced Art Direction and Commercial Photography

Advertising Design and Photography students collaborate in a professional studio setting. Students learn the following: (1) How to develop a professional ad campaign with a strong concept. (2) Use both photography and design to present an appropriate product image that will effectively attract and influence the target audience. (3) Learn to adapt to an art director's layout for an actual photo shoot. (4) How to adjust a concept and layout to photographic realities. Work can be viewed in Lürzer's Archive Magazine's Student Section under Columbia College Chicago. Three more examples appear on the following page.

The Ad Club/One Show Student Competition

At Columbia College Chicago I was instrumental in creating The Ad Club. In conjunction with the Marketing Communications and Art & Design Departments, The Ad Club was a great way for writer and art director students to collaborate in contests outside the school. One in particular, was the One Club of New York's "One Show Student Competition." From 2006-2012 I supervised The One Show of New York Student Competition. The following pages contain examples from each year's competition. Examples continue on the following three pages.
